A UTAH VIEW.

The Salt Lake Tribune Tells of the Sage Brush State.

The Salt Lake Tribune thus speaks of Nevada:

For a great many years Nevada was the leading mining State of the Union. We have always claimed that when transportation shall be cheapened and multiplied, when labor is adjusted on the scale of other States, Nevada will resume her own place as the foremost of mining States, although two or three of her great districts appear to have been practically exhausted. Within the last year an immensely rich district has begun to yield in Southeastern Nevada. At least two great districts have been opened along the base of the Sierras. Other of the old gold camps in the State have been reawakened, and except about the camps that once depended on the wonderful bonanza produced in the old days, there has been a general advance along all the lines of industry. We had hoped that before this a railroad would be pointed into the desert from here, to bring into active work a score of mining districts which only want cheap and swift transportation to make them exceedingly productive. That hope has been postponed, but at the same time it is marvelous that it should be so, for there is no spot in the United States that we know of that gives so much promise to a profitable railroad traffic as the stretch of country for 700 miles between this city and Los Angeles. It will have to be done pretty soon. From the very nature of the case it cannot be very long postponed. Nevada's wool interest, which is very great, of course has been sadly crippled during the last three years. Much of her important interest, through which Nevada drew very much revenue, the raising of horses has been practically killed by the fall of the price of all ordinary animals of that breed. And yet the men of Nevada are doing well, making fair livings as they are, while a few are making great fortunes, and all are looking forward hopefully that the long-talked-of railroads that are to make available the southern and southern mining districts will come (before long). The mining world owes very much to Nevada. It was the original school of mines on this Coast. Nevada men are everywhere, in Montana, Idaho, Utah, Colorado, Arizona, in Old and New Mexico, and some are delving away under the Cordilleras and the Andes and in South Africa. In the future, when the men of the East begin to realize how much of their own greatness they owe to the precious metals which have been sent them from the West, there will be an awakening all over the camps of Nevada, and the State will prosper with more than her old-time extravagant prosperity. We send them New Year's greetings, and with them the hope that the day of their good fortune will not be much longer postponed.

QUEER FORMATIONS.

Geological Laws Defied at Pine Nut.

Geologists who visit Pine Nut are filled with astonishment. In the language of one of the devisers of the camp:

"They don't know their alive."

All laws of geology seem to be set utterly at defiance. Gold is found in all sorts of queer company. Ever since the world began gold is supposed to have held his head high and only associated with certain forms of rock formations, but in Pine Nut gold has a democratic way of running with all sorts of company. It is found in close proximity to marble and granite and is not too high toned to mix with turquoise and lime. But to cap the climax of its queer tendencies it is found locked in the embrace of something that has never been considered any more than a mongrel mineral and that same is asbestos. This fact has been clearly demonstrated, and not a day passes that the miners do not find gold mixed up in the most questionable mineral company where it was never seen before.

The good old Bible, if one reflects aright says that "gold is where you find it," and this seems to be the summing up of the Pine Nut situation. The geologists fight shy of Pine Nut as it overthrows a good many, old, established theories.

From all accounts it would seem that the original positions of the minerals was disturbed by a mighty upheaval, perhaps of a volcanic nature, or volcanic and earthquake combined, which broke up the foundations of the mountains and cast the precious metals to the surface mingled with everything that came up, a heterogeneous crowd of rocks and metals and that new veins formed in the mass and new formations arranged themselves to puzzle future generations.

ALMOST TO THE WIRE.

Howe and Kinney Making a Hot Finish.

As the nags came down the stretch it looks as if Howe was coming in with a great burst of speed with Kinney a close second, and both jockies using whip and spur to the best advantage. Muller who started off so well appears to be sulking along near the head of the stretch and his lady backers in the grand stand now admit that they should have played aged horses to win, and not have planned their faith and money on young colts. The knowing ones say, however, that Vic is saving his speed for today and will show a brilliant finish. The school children dumped in their votes yesterday for Howe in great wads.

The polls will close at 6 p. m. tonight.

The vote now stands:

Workers Ordered off.

On Thursday last at Pine Nut Fred Sargent's men were ordered off the Bank of California claim by deputy marshals from Genoa.

He put a gang of men at work on Tuesday, Dec. 31st and they were ordered off. He resumed work on New Year's day, but on the day following a posse came to them and made them leave the ground.

Sargent is congratulating himself on his good luck. He was acting as the agent of Oliver Roberts, the original locator, a fact that the men who ordered him off were not acquainted with. Having been prevented from doing the assessment work by force the original locator has a sure case and is thereby saved from doing his assessment work this year or last.

DeLamar Real Estate.

Town lots in DeLamar are still being taken up. All the grounds available for this purposes is covered by mining locations. It belongs to the locators of course, but how to protect its surface from trespassers is something of a question. The owners of the Sally Ann claim at the upper end of town are fencing off their ground to avoid town lot jumpers, believing this to be a cheaper method than restoring to arms.

CHEAP CUSTOM WORK A DECEPTION.

A style of tailoring is rapidly gaining headway which is but an imposition upon the consumer and a detriment to the workman. The cheap custom work or what is called "special order work," is a shrewd dodge for the purpose of deceiving the customer into the belief that he is obtaining custom work at ready made prices. The real worth of custom work lies in the exactness of the fit, and the thoroughness in which it is made. Cheap custom work is therefore inferior to ready made work.

Large concerns, some also engaged in ready made work have grown up of late and depend for patronage upon retail stores, and have numerous agents scattered everywhere soliciting orders and gain trade because of the strikingly cheap prices offered for goods made to order. As a rule these agents seldom obtain an order twice from the same person.

It is about time that this scheme was exposed to the people and ABE COHN of the EMPORIUM shows up the fraud. If you want clothes that fit and are tried on as often as is necessary call at the EMPORIUM Court House Building, Carson City, Nevada.
